The LL.M. Finance Program: International, Interdisciplinary and Practice-Oriented

The ILF offers a unique interdisciplinary Master of Laws in Finance (LL.M. Finance) program to well-qualified law, business, or economics graduates. Courses in this highly specialized program are conducted entirely in English. ILF students are fully-enrolled members of Goethe University which confers the LL.M. Finance degree.

About 60 highly qualified international graduates are admitted to the program. The excellent faculty-student ratio of 65 to 60 ensures small classes and thus academic excellence and direct personal contact between students and the faculty. This program is aimed at those who have an interest in combining theoretical knowledge with practical training in law and international finance. The curriculum is interdisciplinary and overcomes the traditional separation of the academic disciplines of law and business/economics. The faculty consists of both prominent academics as well as experienced practitioners from Europe's financial world, e.g. leading international law firms, major banks, the European Central Bank, the German Bundesbank and BaFin (German Federal Financial Supervisory Authority).

The LL.M. Finance program also incorporates a special two-month internship with public and private institutions which support the ILF. In addition, the ILF has cooperation agreements for student exchanges with Columbia Law School (U.S.), and Amsterdam Business School (the Netherlands). The ILF located in Frankfurt am Main, Germany, the major financial center in Europe, provides the ideal location to train young professionals to deal with current and future legal and financial challenges.
