„Der LL.M. 2027“

The German publication on the Master of Laws

Why even in the digital age, you can't do without print

The search for prospective students takes place primarily through digital channels, but to be found, your law school must first be known.

The German Publication on the Master of Laws „Der LL.M.“ takes a different approach, allowing you to get into the minds of tomorrow's top graduates today - before they actively search for an LL.M. program.

Get a head start on attracting talent in the competitive market for high caliber candidates with a presence in „Der LL.M.“

Our book: in 5,000 "right" hands

- 1,300 e-fellows.net scholarship recipients (selected from the top 10 percent of German law students) order the print books.
- 3,500 copies are distributed through our career events, universities, student organizations, and local courts.
- 500 downloads of the e-books, which we promote in our talent pool and through external influencers.

High quality content

The authors of our career books are professors, lawyers and tax advisors. The high-quality editorial content on law studies and careers is consistently rated highly by readers (4.5 out of 5 stars for "Der LL.M. 2024").

Northumbria University

Northumbria Law School and Academic Excellence

Northumbria Law School is one of the largest law schools in the UK and is ranked 7th amongst UK law schools for research power in REF 2021 and we are the top law submission in the North of England. It has a national and international reputation for excellence in legal education and recently ranked within the top 50 law schools in the UK by the Guardian University Guide 2022.

The Student Law Office

The Student Law Office is an multi award-winning and world leading law clinic, offering vital legal services on a regional and national level. Since 2008 the Student Law Office has dealt with over 3000 enquiries, represented more than 1000 clients, and secured over £1 million on their behalf.

Our students integrate learning from experience with development of academic knowledge and research skills, all of which is heightened by the live client experience in which the motivation, reality and necessity of client service creates a powerful learning environment. The excellent teaching environment in the Student Law Office has been recognised by the Higher Education Academy, with the Student Law Office winning a Collaborative Award for Teaching Excellence (CATE).

Our Programmes

Students who enrol on our LL.B. and decide that they wish to qualify as solicitors have the option of transferring to our M Law degree. This is an integrated masters programme which incorporates knowledge and professional skills that will help students to pass key assessments set by the Solicitors Regulation Authority (the Solicitors Qualifying Examination) which they must take on their journey to becoming a solicitor.

We also offer the postgraduate Legal Practice Course for graduates who wish to qualify as solicitors and from 2023 will also offer an LL.M. in Professional Legal Practice to prepare graduates for stage 1 of the Solicitors Qualifying Examination.

We are one of only 10 institutions in England and Wales to provide the postgraduate Bar Course and the only institution to offer the M Law Bar Course which incorporates both the academic and vocational study required to qualify as a barrister. We offer a comprehensive range of law programmes and flexible modes of study to help our students become lawyers, professionals, and take their careers to the next level.

The LL.M. Law programme is part of Northumbria University's innovative and flexible framework, which will allow you to study for you with a specialism, such as those listed below.

LL.M. Law (International Commercial Law)

An increasingly globalised economy requires international commercial law professionals to have a wide range of knowledge on issues relevant to international commerce. This includes the World Trade Organisation and the law of international trade, and in areas such as international finance, intellectual property, or international energy law.

Hochschulporträt 183

LL.M. Law (Cyber Law)

As technology rapidly evolves it can be a challenge for our legal systems to keep up. The Cyber Law specialism has been designed to meet the needs of cyber legal practitioners, as well as other professionals working in the technology field who may benefit from a deeper contextual understanding of the wicked problems in the commercial, security and military sectors.

LL.M. Law (Space Law)

As nations grapple with the enormity of the task of regulating outer space, all those working in the space sector require an understanding of geopolitics, advanced skills in policy analysis and awareness of the limits and legal constraints on human space exploration. Studying Space law will equip you with enviable knowledge and skills at the frontiers of legal research, and staff at Northumbria are among the UK's foremost authorities on the subject.

LL.M. Law (Criminal Justice)

The programme has been designed to meet the needs of legal practitioners, policy makers and other professionals who currently work, or hope to work in the field of criminal justice. This offers an exceptional opportunity to gain career enhancing knowledge and skills which can be applied to a wide range of careers thus it is an excellent opportunity for existing barristers, solicitors, and forensic practitioners, those in the fields of rehabilitation, the police service, private investigation across the public, private and volunteer sectors as well as PhD study.

LL.M. Law (International Criminal Law and Practice)

The course emphasises practical skills and how to overcome dilemmas frequently experienced by practitioners in client-facing and litigation settings, as well as examining the procedural difficulties that tribunals such as the International Criminal Court often face.
